BARTHOLOMEW GRIFFIN (P-1602)	82
Faire is my love	82
SAMUEL DANIEL (1562-1619)	83
Song: Are they shadowes that we see	83
Sonnets
Faire is my love, and cruell as she's faire	84
Care-charmer Sleepe, sonne of the sable night	84
O Fearfull, frowning Nemesis	85
A Pastorall: O Happy golden Age	87
Love is a sicknesse	89
Ulysses and the Siren	89
THOMAS CAMPION (1567-1620)	93
Followe thy faire sunne, unhappy shadowe	93
Harke, al you ladies that do sleep	94
When thou must home to shades of under ground	95
Rose-cheekt Laura , come	95
Never weather-beaten Saile more willing bent to shore	96
Kinde are her answeres	97
Thrice tosse these Oaken ashes in the ayre	97
There is a Garden in her face	98
What faire pompe have I spide of glittering Ladies	99
So quicke, so hot, so mad is thy fond sute	100
Shall I come, sweet Love, to thee	100
MICHAEL DRAYTON (1563-1631)	102
FROM Idea
Nothing but No and I, and I and No	102
You not alone, when You are still alone	102
Deare, why should you command me to my Rest	103
Calling to minde since first my Love begun	103
Since ther's no helpe, Come let us kisse and part	104
FROM The Third Eclogue: Stay, Thames , to heare my Song	104

Sonnets
Musick to heare, why hear'st thou musick sadly	154
Shall I compare thee to a Sommers day	155
Devouring time blunt thou the Lyons pawes	155
When in disgrace with Fortune and mens eyes	156
When to the Sessions of sweet silent thought	156
Thy bosome is indeared with all hearts	157
Not marble, nor the gilded monument	157
Being your slave what should I doe but tend	158
Is it thy wil, thy Image should keepe open	158
Sinne of selfe-love possesseth al mine eie	159
Tyr'd with all these for restfull death I cry	159
That time of yeare thou maist in me behold	160
So are you to my thoughts as food to life	160
Farewell thou art too deare for my possessing	161
Then hate me when thou wilt, if ever, now	161
They that have powre to hurt, and will doe none	162
Let me not to the marriage of true mindes	162
Tis better to be vile then vile esteemed	163
Th'expeuce of Spirit in a waste of shame	163
When my love sweares that she is made of truth	163
